

Growing Resiliency

How does one small city the size of one square mile produce at least 10% of its fresh produce/fruit needs on its own?

That's what I aim to find out in Keansburg, a small one-square mile urban area on the shore of the Raritan bay. Keansburg presents its own unique challenges as a densely populated shore community heavily affected by Hurricane Sandy back in 2012. Admidst issues and concerns over flood damage and sinking finances, food securtiy issues have become a major concern as over one tenth of the population seeks help finding their next meal.

to be presented in 2015 by Jacqueline Abeltin

Committee:
Holly Nelson
Laura Lawson
Wolfram Hoefer

